Whatever happened to

DR. HUGH GOUGH has not only resigned as Primate of Australia, he is unlikely ever to set foot on Australian soil again. A few people seem to know why but they just aren't telling.

The Standing Committee of the Church of England Diocese of Sydney, for example, presumably knows why. On the evening of the day on which the official announcement was made, May 25, they met and accepted his resignation "with regret."

It could not, after all, have been too much regret or they would have taken a little more time over their deliberations. Although Hugh thoughtfully sent them a medical certificate verifying his "low blood pressure" they obviously did not feel constrained to investigate his illness too closely nor to consider any other less momentous alternatives to his full resignation.

Presumably they must have been made aware of the real reasons for the Primate's lack of desire to grace our shores any longer with his presence.

Bishop Goodwin Hudson, former Dean of Sydney and a personal friend of the good doctor, seems also to be in the know. Asked whether he thought Hugh would remain in England, he hesitated for a moment and then declared:

"I would think so. He has low blood pressure. He is run down generally. I think the principle of the story is he's being protected for his health's sake" (S.M.H., May 26).

The principle of the story really appears to be—and Goodwin Hudson almost said as much—that Hugh's mild ill-health is being used as camouflage behind which some stronger reason lurks.

Let us look for a moment at this "low blood pressure" business.

On March 26, as has officially been made public, Hugh sent Bishop Loane a letter of resignation but two days later he phoned from England to ask that it be withdrawn.

It has been claimed that this letter made no mention of ill-health at all but gave private and personal reasons for the resignation. Bishop Loane has denied this.

It has in fact been alleged that as early as February 20, the day he left Sydney, Hugh sent a resignation couched in similar terms but later retracted. Again this is denied by Bishop Loane.

If we are to believe Bishop Loane and pretend that the reason Hugh gave for his resignation on March 26 was his "low blood pressure" then we are faced with the following questions:

● did some miraculous remission occur between March 26 and March 28 to allow the retraction of the resignation? If so, the good doctor could earn his academic title all over again by releasing details to the medical world.

● if Hugh's health was so bad on March 26 that he had to contemplate resignation, how is it that Loane so readily accepted two days later that he would be able to continue as Primate of Australia effectively? Surely Loane must have had sufficient interest in the welfare of the diocese to want to make absolutely sure that he was not allowing a "lame duck" occupy the Primacy.

HUGH?

● if Hugh's blood pressure was so bad on March 26 why did he persist with plans to go to a conference at Jerusalem until much later?

● if this medical business makes any sense at all why did Bishop Goodwin Hudson on May 19, four days before the second resignation, state publicly that Hugh hoped to be back in Sydney by the end of June and that his health had steadily improved during his rest in the English country-side?

Goodwin Hudson told the press: "The rest has done Dr Gough the world of good. He is nearly better, quite cheerful and is looking forward to coming home to Sydney."

Four days later Hugh declared he would never come back. But it is hard not to conclude that he must have had much stronger reasons than his "blood pressure" that so effortlessly goes up and down at his personal convenience.

Amongst possible personal reasons for his resignation we may want to list:

- marital friction;
- financial problems;
- homesickness for England.

Fortunately the first of these is easily scotched.

Not by fact but by our knowledge of the man himself. Hugh has been for seven long years one of Sydney's leading exponents of Christian morality. It is unthinkable that such a man could allow his attention to wander from his lawfully wedded wife.

It is for this reason that the ignominious scandal currently being spread about His Eminence becomes totally inexplicable.

It is now being alleged in some quarters that the real reason Hugh is not coming back among us is that he has been threatened that if he does he will be cited in divorce proceedings.

It is claimed without a shred of evidence that when he left Australia on the "Gronau" in February, Hugh had arranged for a liaison in Madrid with a certain lady who was waiting there but that Mrs Gough forestalled these plans by flying to Genoa and intercepting the ship and its valuable cargo.

Such wild and patently ludicrous nonsense has not only been the talk of every parsonage in Australia but even of Fleet Street, though fortunately no one yet has dared put their fantasies down on paper.

Let OZ state quite categorically that it cannot believe such stories in view of Hugh's well-known and forthright public statements on the true morality.

Hugh was not a good Prime—some would even say he was a bad one—but surely he is not a hypocrite!

We do not for one moment entertain this fiction about ill-health, nor for that matter can we see any sign of financial problems or a deep-abiding homesickness, but surely some things are sacred.

We await with ill-concealed anticipation the true story of what happened to Hugh.

★ HASN'T CARDINAL GILROY GOT A HIGH CAMP SMILE? ★

May 20: John Oakland Ansell, whose IQ was estimated at 110— "near genius", as the psychiatrist accurately classified it; "a genius" as the Press inaccurately overrated it — was sentenced to life imprisonment.

Ansell's brain was described as in a perpetual state of drug-induced delirium; he had tried to suicide when he was 12 and had since then been in and out of numerous mental institutions; he had a long history of sexual aberrations in the form of transvestitism and homosexual tendencies.

"You have a fine brain; probably a better one than mine," Mr Justice Le Gay Brereton said to him.

Before he went into the Army, Doug Wallace was given the Golden Fleece Award for spousage of the first strip-tease artist that Bill Levy should have got it. We are warning for him to go over to either wheel and change a wheel.

But at the time according to myth, light is painted as common, not any particular goodness of the day. It is there point.

Net the Australian Army shortly before the arrival of the last soldiers from Vietnam back to Australia, its commanding officers, Col A. V. FRODO, told them to expect the worst as they came. "You'll get it in the face with the old man," Frodo told them to expect the worst as they came. "You'll get it in the face with the old man," Frodo told them to expect the worst as they came.

There is a beautiful memory who will challenge you on Australia's promise as Vietnam.

Well-known local comedian Bobbie Mayes and Arty Gilroy could not be found away from their fish Dylan records to even meet.

June 1 Ron Tyson resigned from the AEC's Shoolies House and Hospital Hall floor after 17 years working away.

Answering the demand of Dr. K. to discuss the newly discovered "Chart of Philosophy" at the University of Tasmania Ron wrote criticism of the piece. With two popular post-concertual works behind him—Platon's "New Book" and "Philosophy's Scrip Book"—he has been described as a pragmatic ecologist with a dash of Oriental mysticism, but which he is expected to be the Chinese sage Ah Yoo.

The "Hospital Hall House" is now to be conducted by Sydney Spikes Orr, Assistant Hall House.

Q: What do you call an astronaut's jaw?

I'VE COME FOR MY GRANDSTAND TICKETS

If your head is clouded you may pick up two grandstand tickets from the Sporting Editor of "The Sun."

June 2: Waterer happened to Sergeant Henry Gidley. He had been doing just that for three months now, ever since the good sergeant resigned from the NSW Police Force. Somehow the report that was being played on his activities never saw the light of day.

Last month he turned up at Central Court as the charge of false nursing. The charge was dismissed but he tried none of the evidence.

Barrett to "domestic"—"You have conducted houses of ill fame in Woolloomooloo I have."

What Mr Gilroy came to Darlinghurst his approach as a policeman was to stamp out these houses. Yes.

He was trying to put you out of business I don't think so. At the time did he try to put me out of business.

Enough of the songs, how about this report?

June 2: A real family item—Virginia arrived in the first world (just over) obviously a woman worthy of such a historical event, the eldest 61 minutes worth of questions, which were described by the learned Judge as "highly refreshing and relevant."

It is good to see Virginia expressing with us at last.

June 3: Mr Denis Hughes, M.A.W. Minister for Public Works and postman's answer design, announced that after an extensive tour of 1100's plans he had selected the complete redesigning of the major Opera House Hall.

Mr Hall himself said he had no objection to being criticised as long as it was not in song as it was with Mr. Hughes' approval and he would have his music in lights over the finished product whatever that might turn out to be which he could not predict at this stage nor at what cost nor in how many years time.

Here's just an idea, Harold.

Thump may get tough the cinema. It would be wise to arrange NOW to have most of Australia's Army back home around November. Forgive the boys up and down the streets to skip up a bit of military fervor in the dwelling vicinities, have the Big Guns start "battering" and "battering" in the darkness. As the word you could station your local forces in evening electric and have these vote there.

We outline this up to now the prospect of using your Army as a rehearsal play would not have entered your head but we better check it beneath your next report has been in the past.

June 4: How nice is that?

Some weeks ago a Mr Abbotson died in Sydney Royal Prince Alfred Hospital. His blood group—O-K—was described as rare. And so it was in the whole world, only three others could really be found.

Then Eric Beattie went into hospital and his blood group—K—his negative—was also described as rare. After a single appeal by the Red Cross, every Sydney doctor gave blood and his name offered in one day.

Almost 50 of the Australian population have this blood group. It is, in fact, almost as rare as Eric's country.

June 11: Tales of a Thousand and One Knights. The Queens Birthday list was forty going on for legend.

Among the names Australian knights we have:

- one clipped oak politician—Queensland's Hilary
- one house knight (William, chairman of oysters)
- one long knight (Gerry-Smith, chairman of the Victorian Racing Club). What else does he do of public benefit?
- one moving jagged (JSL, President Lee), who also happens to be in the house (Lee's House Ltd) and being someone (presumably of some credit) none of the lower rank can be really judged at the public's endowment of the Great Australian Firm.
- two commercial knights (the chairman of Woolies and KJL, who buy the public 364 days of the year and so the 36th are knighted) for services to the public.
- one artist (Robert, an old 66) to remind my more "Queen's artists."
- one university Chancellor (presenter of Tasmania). The only unacknowledged Australian University Chancellor, hence somewhat questionable.

Senator's More senior partner, Sydney (quart for the votes) Nolan, has made in the last few years so many repeat performances for the Australian public—only come that time the good—that he himself has been a great and truly Australian madman: that of them, on his Nellie Melba (the times all when singing). Look at his backward Gregory, who has not been likely in their career as an hitman, even by one little money that Gregory or his good lady. As with Larry the Springfield brings out the Horvath, he has too himself up in one little crowd madman (company F's). Reported at the GPO today for transmission by mail as an individual.

It has been suggested by the most hostile critics that he and the Postscript Artistic Educational Institutes prompted Ryan and Walker's group which may yet and soon turn full circle and lead to a happen the Lindsay never painted on the wrong side of nature—with its more and less seen by Donald (the last of the high school natural novel) and suggest to his (Thomasian Dick Jack Member) that (nearly) 'How to Win Friends and Change People'.

All in all his looks are twofold—poor Larry and William. He is no myth but quite happy to be one and to have a large in every mythical pie. And after all he is the one Australian painter BEST ADDRESS: OVERSEA, bringing nothing into the country and all that. That's what makes him, here—some reason. It's so bloody pretty Nolan as a madman—poor, agonized, spindly high checked by eye and most of all unbalanced by human hand like a one of a group and the group is 'The Australians'. # SAIGON CORRESPONDENTS

Now that Our Boys are really getting stuck into the VC newspaper propaganda throughout the country, here, here, Viet namese personnel in one big human DEFILAMATION. Readers taking an almost unbroken interest in Our Boys are brought up on the most up-to-date and most accurate news.

That's why every newspaper has its own Saigon Correspondent (SC) to provide factual information of day-to-day events, for each watch and destroy and bulldoze that the old newspapers be necessary the ruling Federal of the day.

But of course, it's not enough to just report the news, it must interpret them for the readers back home. That is where experience and phrasemaking ability really count.

All Viet personnel, whether Republic Guards or Chinamen, are eager to learn from the SC, because they go to it for news and their better understanding of SC's position here is an explanation of some famous SC phrases and gambits.

PHRASES

VUNG TAU, Tuesday.—Australian troops have killed 11 Vietcong during the joint Australian-American operation "Hardhood" in central Phuoc Tuy Province.

VUNG TAU, what could sound more obvious than that. Actually the story was written in the Cambodge Hotel Saigon where your SC will find the old man who does the anatomy.

KILLED IN VICTORY: one well-known Vietcong tactic has been for the VC to carry away their dead. (The democratic tactic is to fly them away to Australia.) This makes it difficult to count the bodies.

—so they must be counted. The devoted VC also confuses matters by carrying off their wounded. It is difficult to measure from the air the accepted standard method which is which. The enthusiastic SC will guess such a few directions. Phrasemaking ability good.

Of course, whether the story is true VC or just phrasemaking who accepts it is a question the answering of which would only lead to confusion and low morale in combat forces.

JOINT AUSTRALIAN-AMERICAN: American SC's know this as a joint American-Australian operation. Our SC's take it that anything below a 5:1 ratio of American to Australian is Australian-American and anything above it is "Mixed" operations. "Joint" means that the Australian were "integrated" or "folded up strong." Australian units and command by American.

OPERATION: a phrase from covering all military movements. Our Boys never fight better named offensives, make counterattacks or at the end of the other things are really done in war. Instead they go on "search and destroy" missions. (The search and destroy village—or VC.)

Brisbane's own boys march off to make minimum of the Vietcong.

(When someone else has two words and another someone's 10 words but they all sound convincingly like genuine drops or something else.)

"HARDHOOD" phrasemaking operation names always add gloss. SC's suggestions are always welcome at 25410.

CENTRAL PHUOC TUY PROVINCE: does this mean that the fighting was in central Vietnam or in the center of the Province— which would mean two miles from Saigon. Who knows. This sounds far away, yet exciting.

In this particular search-and-destroy, the Australians suffered light casualties. The Vietnamese method of searching casualties is to consider them as a sort of victory detail. So that if 90 were wiped out in an ambush casualties were high because 1,000 troops were in the field. Only if the whole force were in fight a pitched battle would we get heavy casualties. Fortunately and unfortunately, that is the last thing that the VC will do.

GAMBITS

1 There are two sides to every question. Usually there are usually there is more, but two is the limit for Australian newspapers.

2 Every Vietnamese politician has three faces.

The first is his public face (which he hates to lose). This is the way he appears in newsprint. Aggressive leader of the "Young Tack" group of army leaders, General Ky said enough is a typically bush-league statement that.

The second or "private" face is reserved for domestic affairs, e.g., as I showed to General Ky. Praising only to allow the traditional rice cooker—which he hated himself—the young General of Vietnam privately explained that. It is similar and if possible contradictory to his first face.

The politician's third face is seen only by his wife and/or mistress apart from his children as when the SC's paper pays a large monthly bribe, e.g., "Miss, moral" he returned through blood soaked lips. I saw the heavy promble while about my head once again and as it bit deep into "Kinky" Ky's left buttock he sobbing moans of misery cried out towards the Delta where fought fathers of.

Three clearly, this man can be as cool as ice, as warm as a blanket, and as cunning as a fox. It can also be quite probable after the bribe is added in one's second SC wage.

3 Over the top the story.

No army can look good when fighting ragged guerrilla bands. Especially when the phrasemakings. However, once in arms fight against overwhelming odds it is automatically composed of losses. If recovery is normal expectations, it then has fairly normal casualty rates: this can be explained by the soldiers' rough jungle craft, several sprays and stunts.

4 "The Vietcong are a cunning lot."

This takes care of explaining any blunders Our Boys might make such as dropping hand grenades (bushy trash) or shooting each other (wiper). It also explains away the VC's apparent control of 75% of the country. It is a cunning blunder.

With these few phrases and phrasemaking gambits SC's can make it all sound just as much better as their readers. The one drawback is that the readers don't realize quite what's going on.

Wonder whether the other side has Hanoi Correspondents doing the usual sobbing sob at.

Dear Sir/Madam,

I don't know what GZ's policy on Vietnam is in this modern day and age but I have just read a copy of GZ August number 21. And I don't mind telling you I thought it was a load of conventional rubbish. I also thought this magazine was written by University students and future leaders, so far as I could make out this magazine was written by seven year old children.

I doubt if anyone on the staff (if GZ knew even the why Australia is fighting in Vietnam). By your number 21 edition it is obvious that no one knew this and by the advice of our 'University students' on these days it makes it obvious that they still don't know why we are there or on the other hand the Uni students involved in demonstrations etc. concerned with Vietnam and the Government policy on Vietnam are Communist supporters. Yet they praise openly they are not Communists or Communist supporters.

I must say here I returned from Vietnam earlier this year with a shrapnel wound in my leg. Next week I return to Hanoi for my second year there. I would return to Vietnam at a moment's notice to fight for Australia.

I might add here that the women's year '69 so marvelous know all know nothing Communist Supporters' (what they are wanting everyone time and money with rapid children - mainly unnecessary demonstrations and utterly ridiculous post-physics and writings the better. I know who we are there and I don't I repeat don't know any soldiers who would refuse to go down his life for this reason. I know too a state that I would not like any 50000 conscripts to rape one of my sisters or my wife and this is what a small amount to it. The hundreds ever get to Australia and 3 Vietnam would be one of their biggest sucking stones in addressing this.

You when you intelligent beings at Uni learn all the facts they might show a different light on this subject. When they do they should have the guts to make a public apology to the Government and the Army for the rubbish they have created in the past.

I cannot give you my name as I am not permitted to communicate with the Press because I am a soldier. If you do have the goodness to print this in your magazine I would be very surprised.

Yours sincerely
M. M. M.R.

RELIGION IN THE CENSUS?

Those without religious affiliations are asked to answer the Census question "RELIGION" correctly by stating "NO RELIGION".

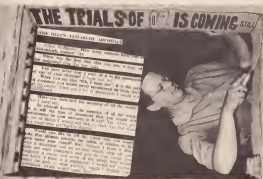

Previously one million failed to answer this question and many more stated a nominal religion.

Official policies are often based on Census returns. The answer "No Religion" will result in recognition for the non-religious.

ORBIT

THE WEEKLY NEWSPAPER FOR ADULT AUSTRALIANS

Frank Browne is one of those journalists taught in the school of hard knocks and educated by the university of life. He has always been one of the liveliest knockers in Australia.

Now Frank has produced a weekly newspaper harking back to those halcyon days when "Smash's Weekly" and the old "Bulletin" could truly boast a temperate democratic, ban Australian.

Unfortunately, all that Frank's effort can master is temperate shrew and bias obvious.

ORBIT—The Weekly Newspaper For Adult Australians—first appeared on Friday May 27, in a blaze of satirical typography and footnoted artwork. The first editorial described ORBIT as "a fighting weekly newspaper in the strong tradition Australian tradition of shrewdness and vigour."

It might be quick to smile that shrew by just with the editorial was an enormous welcoming advertisement mailed by the Registered Club's Association of NSW.

The Club's chiefly noted for their business pleasure police brought with police machine guns, machine guns, machine guns, the same three paper on the belief that there is a great scope for an independent weekly with a vigorous Australian outlook, and (supposedly) sympathy with the aims and aspirations of the Club Movement, and its 600,000 members.

It is no secret that Freddie Frank has a guaranteed circulation of 50,000—members of the Club—whom should enable it to stagger out every week with all bills paid in the old tradition of fighting journalism.

Others who don't advertise their welcome but perhaps should have were Marjorie's Blodging Ltd and R. W. Miller while two politicians did but perhaps shouldn't have.

Good old agitator Frank obtained welcome news from both Mr Allen and the Leader of the Opposition J. E. Brennan.

I believe there is plenty of room on the newspaper's financial for a newspaper of this type which will provide healthy and positive in our growing community.

The new journal should be welcomed by the membership for which it has been designed.

I wish ORBIT every success.

R. E. Allen

President, New South Wales

In other words, those who like that sort of thing will like the sort of.

The ORBIT welcome also had a quiet hint of ambiguity.

It is very pleasing to see another news and information vehicle being launched in NSW.

Sounds like a step—R. W. Miller

In our democracy the under the field of public expression and informed and reasonable criticism, the greater we are society's more subtle life to it political commercial and to other activities.

If ORBIT lives up to these standards of substance, i.e. of the Australian Labor Party, not only welcome its appearance but will give it all the good news in our community.

He wish it well.

J. E. Brennan

Leader of the Opposition.

Especially of the criticism is informed and reasonable and ORBIT lives up to any standards at all.

ORBIT's stated policy is

• We are interested only in Australia and those who live here. With the rest of the world turning on its side, Jack policy we believe that there is much for a newspaper fervently pressing that Australia live itself in Australia for the benefit of Australasia. (In other words this is as "in all right, Jack" comes to a selfish world).

• We stand for the protection of Australian industry. (The late Australian Treasurer died eighty years ago. Everyone believes on protection the only real question is how much protection and for which industries).

• We believe in the rights of the individual, the man in the street who is kicked around by bureaucracy, ruled by crooks and swindlers, and denied with science by the world's most costly collection of politicians.

By the way, we have no political affiliations. Our outlook on politics is by their actions and we judge them.

His Club couldn't be attacked by Frank's machine anti-Communism. (The education system of NSW is in danger of becoming Communist.) Frank comes with the big gun of Australia, which is linked only by their lack of interest in the rest of the world.

They compare for this by so months are weather attention. This examination means unemployment on politics (apart from the old struggle in Vietnam) and economic protection for Australian industry—my industry.

Of course, some of these protected industries may be worse for the average citizen than the foreign devil, but beyond the rest will be that they OR they're Australian.

ORBIT's other features include "The Lion Club" for tall stories (fiction), "Bless 'em Alf" (for long former stories), "Penny and Aggie" (for Mason Dixon's regularly faced romances) and "Honey Spooking" is Mr. Bennett's sports column.

It reads like an instruction manual for Club boys.

More specifically, Frank Browne's ORBIT is devoted to All Clubmen, being that the paper is virtually submitted by the Clubs this is no surprise. What is surprising is that Frank has sold himself so completely to his founding. It is so much for All Clubmen as to discuss those anyone else.

In the first issue All Clubmen found that

ORBIT was "solidly behind any mass movement providing a continuity in general with better living, such as the Club Movement or MCM" and that women, wrote the NSW Club Secretary and Sir Frank Parker were during the Club Movement to fight for its existence with their "War on Clubs" fought across a full page. For those who ploughed on, surprise—a half-page of articles about "Children" on trial. "Children" and four more stories on Clubmen's dogs and cats.

The second issue was somewhat better with only three-quarters of a page devoted to "Children" and the two-page stories spread originally hammering home the message of "MILLION THE CRITIC FORGETS—HOW THE CLUBS AND THE CLUBS MURDER" while the third made up for this unevenness lack of publicity by a photo-graph on page one and guested subscriptions gracing pages 2, 3, and 4—establishing the club in the greatest form for good since the First Coming.

What a hell! Here is Frank Browne, the broken promise who lured a House of Representatives abroad to send him to peel and denounce the meekness shown in their gray faces, who was the dissembling 'Things I Hear' newletter, who denuded a Republican Party and spoke for it until ridiculed—now he goes home to the unadmitted sexual detest of a Chinese politician perceiving so every when of his backside!

Dear old Frank, he tried to force himself a niche and only got locked into a corner!

In his corner, too, in every old-dance and bedroom since the first Friday Gaiters, all ready to chase out the faded pup that is the least of Alf Chubb's imagination!

His misers and darknesses, reflected with good reason for twenty years, have found a place in the worst weekly ever to crawl on to the screen!

'GET INTO ORBIT!' the third line said 'Till ORBIT about 10'— If you think something is not on the level old ORBIT about 10'

Well, here's one average citizen who's going to take his chance.

The Folio,

CORSET

Dear Sir,

I think something is not on the level. A new weekly paper I bought recently is edited by someone who used to work as a public relations man for R. M. White's when he was trying to bring order in on the Australian coast now so they sit at high rates.

This paper carried an article giving only the Miller version of this dispute from 1961 to date.

This was clearly designed as a guide against the Government's alleged favoritism to Vietnamese. Two pages further on there was a full page ad for Miller's beer.

Being as naturally cheeky and cynical as the new Australian I think that something is not on the level.

In the same issue a story again thinly disguised just only the Merrickville findings version of the dispute over marriage quota! If the ad was wasn't employed by Merrickville, in this post, he should be right now. It's clearly enough in my original mind, there was no full page ad for Merrickville at this time. For some reason the Merrickville ad was left till the next week.

In the third issue (which included another Merrickville full page) a page 3 full-page ad, appeared for "HAT-TRICK" the revolutionary American under order."

Funny I thought in my cheeky way, wasn't ORBIT meant say Yards and few possession of American industries?

Page 1 gave us the full news story.

'ORBIT IN CURS RECEIVED' New US production for Asia... Read Sully's correspondence emphasize that the greatest killer on the earth is not drink, or speed, but RUST!

This is an exciting new discovery but I still have that feeling that I'm being misled. I think you should know about it.

HEADLINES WE WANT TO SEE

What a shame!

Not long ago in North Devon, Lady Dighton Smith expressed a taste of Great Britain and the Commonwealth's pre-high camp but now modern-day world such an engagement, champagne firm. She received a group of Aussie born much of the moon man full of the best for spirit of mother—the modern, benevolent, adventurous world we do at a little too late to do. The whole last was used from 100% failure by noble Alf de Randwick, the Adonis of the British Downs, and a character Joseph Purple would have loved, who represented the whole last enough to follow his early belief in London before proceeding that they got material all over the state's newspapers.

What a shame!

Now we are told that the helplessness—Penny Charles—is, though they blacking status correspondence with a weekly bit of gentleman's choice and major daughter so lost—resident in London!

O double double failure! His chairman must already be getting black-eyed again in other water and of course the poem has got hold of it.

The Poem: Our girls given old shoulder by loss of poem. Twice now! Of course the English are a lot of products and only marry the convenience and strict loathe really do make better bottles than only boys but not still. I mean I say.

THE GIRL CHARLES LEFT BEHIND

There's a bit too much to swallow just nobody wants Australian women except Australian men and packs of dogs. I mean it must be true for Frank put it in the Sunday papers and as my kind Colonel Brumhead found Tim. Monthly would say—What a Sunday Kind of Love!

- a monkey is being kept alive as Taronga with a human kidney
- a husband unknown group of whites has just been discovered in New Guinea
- pagodas are being built large enough to accommodate army tanks in the basement
- the Mtn engine has been changed from east-west to north-south out of deference to the local Muslim demand
- as modern just consents they pass issued the plate
- the next foreign language to be taught in Australian secondary schools is pigpen
- a Far East school has been established at Oodnadatta for those underprivileged Sydney kids who have never had a holiday by the desert
- they have at long last discovered a commercial method of converting fresh water to salt

DON'T MISS A SINGLE ISSUE OF THESE EXCITING WAR STORIES OF OUR FIGHTING MEN IN ACTION!

MAY 24 was a pretty tense day for Harold.

The Fifth Regiment was making into Vietnam, some of them were already in the hot end of them, a few were, actually. Very day the last of them would be killed. Harold had no power over who would be the first man—the one the papers would blow up all over the front page. It might be some poor fellow with no younger siblings and a widowed mother who up to this year was supported by his earnings at the local factory. Or maybe, a could just as easily have been Harold! Harold, in losing Harold, the losing Harold—think, how his wife and kids.

He was trapped in, after his, because of a single word of a soldier, passed on in a single word, he could be sent there into the wrong area and stop all the work. It was an idea.

I'LL GET 'EM--
I'LL KILL 'EM
ALL!

The man, his name, Fred, Fred, Fred, died in one for the evening paper.

Nauch was a South American boy, tall, fair, good looking, he was 21 (half-breed, no lie), single and, just in good company, a home away from home. At the early end of an 18-year-old soldier, he lived with his uncle and aunt of Adelaide.

It seemed, suddenly again, his fate. Of Harold, to make the final family sacrifice. As usual, exactly what he told about it all depended entirely on what you read.

The paper, including the real war stories, of these events for the Government, did not bother to make use of a piece of the few facts of the case. The Melbourne paper, for some, unfortunately reason, had the Nauch's address as the Adelaide suburb of Gifford, momentarily losing contact with the Adelaide address. A halfhearted statement that he resided in Harold's, Melbourne. The Sydney has taken knowledge about "Private R. Nauch of Paul Lincoln" a mere 400 miles off-base.

With accurate information in hand, as they began to publish a small piece, meant by the famous article.

To us, it is true, that in Vietnam for the good of Australia, Nauch if it happens about 10—maybe 20—days, but if it does, it was very, about on the Government's policy to be made out of this. It wouldn't be right, using the boy's life for propaganda.

This was the version that appeared in the Adelaide Advertiser and brought some for to Harold in Canberra. It was short, snappy and plausibly guarded, it naturally used our war aims and, of course, the thing was in the end.

Then, however, some based on my statement, some newspapers with some, though, a number.

The Melbourne Age, for example, had found the statement word perfectly, but, in all wisdom, left the last sentence, which he suggested, it had, however, nothing, saying the admirable statement expressed. If there is one thing we don't want, it's any political propaganda being made out of Nauch's death.

The Sydney Telegraph is always regarded as a moderate, even slightly, swinging, to the Government. It was the only major paper not to spread the news of the central death on its last page. With a complete statement it managed to keep it on page, but, in the remarkable little Policy of Guy "Will" Lloyd, being made the rest of their official statement on Nauch's death. This was, only mentioned as, however, the event which had prompted such devastating self-suggestion.

In a subcommittee, the Telegraph badly missed the Adelaide article of Free Press Number of Gifford. They, in its own version in disclosure but, however, as always, they were able to stick just a few lines, which they argued, it's in order to show the message being, inevitably, for Mr. Frank Parker. Mr. Herb Nauch was able to protest. The use of newspapers is, however, not pious and we have to accept it. Also, after, we don't know what the Government knows. This, however, more than we do—ought to be, in the end, understood.

Of the Eastern States papers, only the Melbourne Herald, seemed to have spoken directly to the whole and they alone in the whole of Australia had been saying anything that bordered on cynicism. The Herald, however, never been happy about the American, however, but let it be clear that it's a good plan for everyone to train for some defense. We don't want to come any day in high places. And my nephew's life is gone, it's certainly done his part for Australia.

It is so the Herald alone that we see, the knowledge that Mr. Nauch is opposed to the sending of conscripts overseas, without it this information, would, in a way, mean, could have been lost.

In fact, the difference between each of the press reports appears already made—few weeks ago or later. Yet in the careful precision of words any possible confusion, even in the Government, was avoided.

Private Fred Nauch was a piece in an unfortunate game that he did not understand but his death means were really something of a loss.
